Evolution of the Tom Scott Memorial Cruiser Navigation Rally

I'm not sure whether to give the historical evolution of the Tom Scott Memorial by name or by the evolution of the Two Harbors Contest, previously known as the Shoreline Invitational contest. Perhaps I'll try to do a little of both. There is a long and convoluted history of the evolution and sponsorship of these contests, so I'll try to be as concise as possible. If you have trouble following this, consider my problem in recalling all of it!

Let's start with the Two Harbors Contest because that came first historically. In 1984, Hollywood Yacht Club moved their Shultz Contest (which traditionally finished at the Isthmus (and by this time was no longer being run as a night contest), from mid-July to Friday in mid-September preceding the Ramsey. The combination of those two contests became very popular with SCCA Skippers and participation in both contests soared. Now, in order to understand the evolution, we need to jump over to the Easter Catalina Contest. So, bear with me on this for a moment.

When the Huntington Harbour Yacht Club withdrew its sponsorship and the Harrison Palmer Trophy from the Easter Catalina contest in 1983, Shark Island Yacht Club (who in 1981 was on the top of the Club Point Standings) picked it up. By 1985, after just two short years, SIYC was nearly defunct and dropped their sponsorship. Taking their first try at sponsorship of an SCCA contest, Shoreline Yacht Club then took over the Easter Catalina. They hosted the event for three years, then dropped it. In 1988, Cabrillo Beach Yacht Club then picked it up. Hollywood continued to be disappointed that their Shultz had lost its Brugman standing when it was linked with the Ramsey. So, when Cabrillo withdrew from the Easter Catalina in 1991, Hollywood took that opportunity to sponsor the Easter Catalina, a Brugman contest. They continue to sponsor the Easter Catalina.

When Hollywood Yacht Club moved their Shultz Trophy to the Easter Catalina, that left the Ramsey feeder without a sponsor. So, in 1991, Four Winds Yacht Club agreed to assume sponsorship of that contest and named it the Two Harbors Contest. They brought along the Trophy that had been previously used for the Sharkie, which had been the feeder to the now defunct Shark Island Invitational Contest. Four Winds continued to host the Ramsey feeder contest through 1995 when the Four Winds Yacht Club disbanded. Seal Beach Yacht Club then assumed the Trophy and ran the Two Harbors contest for four years until 2000.

Jumping back now, in 1988 after Shoreline dropped sponsorship of the Easter Catalina, they didn't again sponsor another contest until 1991. It was then that they assumed the feeder to the Bahia Corinthian Invitational from Seal Beach Yacht Club and renamed it the Shoreline Invitational. They continued to sponsor that contest until 2000 when they discontinued sponsorship of the BCYC feeder and moved the Shoreline Invitational trophy to replace the Two Harbors Trophy for the feeder to the Ramsey. Shoreline continues to sponsor the contest to this day. However, in 2009 the name of the trophy was changed to the Tom Scott Memorial to recognize Tom who was a very dedicated and active contestant within Shoreline Yacht Club.

For all its varied history and names, the SCCA September cruiser contest across the San Pedro Channel to Isthmus, Catalina, has enjoyed continued popularity throughout the years. Moorings are usually available then. The picnic table dinners on the beach with the awards ceremony, sometimes illuminated only by flashlight, are a distinctive break from the traditional blazer and tie routine of those on the mainland.
